1967 FORUM

THE SEASONS

It seems that each day can not be complete without some notice of our natural surroundings. As we have sat in the rooms of J. F. K. for the past four years, we have seen in every forthcoming season the promise of glorious days.

Wasn't the first robin of spring or the first fall of snow seen from our classrooms? Didn't these things yield some glory to our classroom walls as we pondered our studies?

We can compare the knowledge we obtained here at J. F. K. with the miraculous works of nature. The uniqueness of every snowflake is comparable to the knowledge we now possess which cannot be equaled. The blooming of a spring rose symbolized our flowering into nature, educated young adults over these years. And the trees shedding their leaves can only be compared to us preparing for new and better things in our years ahead.

The seasons we have seen come and go, while here at J. F. K. will be remembered for the rest of our lives. The seeds of knowledge planted by our teachers and the books which nourished them have been an essential influence on our future. Our appreciation can only be shown by a successful blossom. This we will strive for.

Superintendent's Message

Superintendent of Schools: LEO A. KAMINSKI

As seniors, preparing for graduation, you have reached a milestone in your lives. You have reached the end of an era and are approaching the beginning of a new chapter. This year, you share the celebration of your milestone with the Centennial celebration of free public education in New York State — 100 years of public education, free to all of you.

The Free School Act of 1867 opened the doors of public education to all people. Of course, during the course of these hundred years, there have been many more advances and improvements in education. From these you have reaped a beautiful harvest — a better education.

Today you are "school children" — Tomorrow you will take your place among the educators, the doctors, the lawyers, the parents of New York State. You will watch educational progress with interest — striving, as we all do, for a better education for those yet to be educated, for improvements in our educational system, for another hundred years of educational progress in New York State and in your own community — "Just as the twig is bent, the tree's inclined" — As the child is educated, so shall the community prosper.
